Dedication

Learning is an amazing process of discovery for students. It takes a man with a unique character, a warm sense of humor, and an understanding of the younger generation to lead them toward this discovery. A man whose classes run not always "by the book" but according to the obstacles the students face in seeking knowledge, is one who most deserves to be called a teacher. A teacher has no office hours but rather is willing to spend many hours helping individuals after school as well as during class. A teacher is not above learning from students, from their problems, from other teachers, and from his own errors. He desires only to watch the results of his work in bringing someone closer to truth. We the class of nineteen hundred and sixty seven dedicate our yearbook to a man whom we feel is truly a teacher and who deserves to be recognized:

Mr. William Haney

A black and white photograph of a man in silhouette, standing in a classroom and writing on a chalkboard. He is facing right, and his right arm is extended towards the board. The room is dimly lit, with light coming from a window on the left, creating a strong silhouette effect. A desk with papers is visible in the lower left foreground.

The highest function of a teacher consists not so much in imparting knowledge as in stimulating the pupil in its love and pursuit.

Faculty and Administration

Dr. Benson

Each of you has shown that you possess the talent and ambition to succeed in a difficult task. Our hopes and our wishes go with you as prepare to take up new endeavors. May you all be as successful in them as you have been here at North Reading High School.

Mr. Kenney

Principal's Message

My congratulations and best wishes to the class of 1967.

The world you face is a very complex one which will demand your best effort and judgement. The challenge and decisions will be many and will require courage and strength of character, but with the kind of dedication you are capable of the task can be accomplished. Stand up for what you believe is right and have the courage of your convictions.

May these Golden Years extend throughout your lives.

Good luck and come back and visit us when you can.

Mr. Barresi

At some time or other almost every student has come into contact with Mr. Barresi.

As assistant principal and disciplinarian, he helps Mr. Kenney and, at the same time, helps us keep a smooth running school at all times.

Assistant Principal

"Hopscotch?"

Guidance

Under the guiding supervision of Mrs. Delaney and Mr. Wishart, seniors are enabled to plan out their careers. For the benefit of the students, catalogs of various schools and job areas are available.

Both Mrs. Delaney and Mr. Wishart are extremely important in helping to shape the futures of students, whether they be college, or job, bound.

Mrs. George, Mrs. Carr, Miss Jenkins, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Marston

Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Redding

Kitchen

No day is complete without the smiling faces of "Ma" Jenkins and her staff greeting us at lunchtime. The kitchen staff is responsible for nutritious, well-balanced meals planned by Mrs. Johnson, school dietician.

Health

The caliber of work a student does is often dependent upon how well he feels. The health department is here to see that no student can use poor health as an excuse for poor grades. Yearly physicals as well as eye and ear tests are required of every student to determine specific problems.

Maintenance

Keeping our school and the school grounds neat and clean are the responsibilities of the maintenance staff. Their job is a long and tedious one, however, the clean school does reflect their efforts.

Office Staff

No day would be complete at N.R.H.S. without the morning announcements, the daily bulletins, and the endless communications. The office staff, who is responsible for these functions, is a vital link between administration and students.

"Where'd everybody go?!!!"

"Wonder Bread sure helped me."

Business

With the help of Business Department teachers, students are taught skills which prepare them for jobs in business and industry after graduation.

A new concept in stenographic education has been added to the Business Department. A Norelco stenographic laboratory was installed on September 1. The machine laboratory has improved the teaching and learning of shorthand since it enables the student to progress at his own speed and to experience simulated on-the-job conditions.

This year the co-operative work program has been expanded to allow more students to participate.

This year the department is sponsoring a C.S.F. scholarship for a deserving art student.

Mr. Hughes

Music

Under the direction of Mr. Wiese a varied musical program is offered at N.R.H.S. Activities including Glee Club, Band, and the musical productions are popular with students, and held in high esteem by the townspeople. These programs offer the students an opportunity to improve their cultural background and at the same time increase their musical ability.

Library

Our school library, under the supervision of Mrs. Eisenhaure, offers a prime center of research for students. With a complete reference section and a wide variety of fiction and non-fiction books available, it is an essential part of our school.

provide money for the council to finance buses to games, or to lend money to any class or organization that is in debt. A new method of election has gone into effect. The council officers are elected by the entire student body, and the representatives are elected by the members of their own class. This years council officers are:

Yearbook

Despite organization problems incurred early in the year, the yearbook staff worked diligently to produce the 1967 "Golden Years". Editor Bonnie Campbell, Layout editor Kathy Hoyt, Copy editors Susan Lawler and Wendy Wheeler, and Photography editors Heather Wilson and Steve Luther, were responsible for the actual planning and preparation of the book. Judy Downs served as Patrons and Subscriptions editor, Linda Johnson as Advertisement editor, and Barbara Letterie as Business Manager.

The faculty, students, and townspeople were most co-operative in their support and encouragement of the staff during the year. It is because of this that 1967 "Golden Years" is bigger and better than ever.

World Affairs

The newly re-organized World Affairs Club under the leadership of advisor Mrs. Marsh has been quite active this year. Once-a-month the group attended lectures sponsored by the World Affairs Council at the State Street Bank. On Jan. 21, representatives of the club attended a seminar on foreign policy at Boston Latin School and on Feb. 18, the group represented Indonesia at a model U.N. day held at Hamilton-Wenham High School.

With Mr. Brennan's assistance they see to it that the teachers get any equipment they may need, whether it be projector or tape recorder or whatever. They also sponsor fund raising movies with which they finance new equipment for the A.V. Department, and instruct teachers and junior high students on various machines.

They also help Mrs. Eisenhaure, the Librarian, by putting away returned or new books and by putting each week's new magazines on the magazine rack. The Library Assistants are held responsible for the library, to see that it remains quiet and orderly while Mrs. Eisenhaure is working in her office.

Literary & Debate

The Literary-Debate Club has been active this year participating in the Northshore Debate League (associated with the National Forensic Society). Quarterbacked by Dave Pebler and with running back Steve Jeannes, they did come up with a few wins for Rookie Coach Keyes.

"Come on bird! Bring the ball back!"

"But coach!! He stepped on my foot!"

Indoor Track

This year's Track Team finished 2nd in the Northern Essex Class "B" League, and placed 5th in State Competition.

Because of exceptional talent and long hours of hard practicing throughout the corridors, records fell steadily at every meet in nearly every event. The year's record was 8 Wins, 1 Loss. The success of the Indoor Track Team, in only its second year of competition, was due in part to the expert coaching of coaches Will Roy and Dave Cleary, with Ken MacKenzie and Al Sylvia its captains.

The team has practiced hard, not only after school but also during vacations. Team members have learned not only the skills and techniques of basketball, which have shown up in their games, but also the principles of good sportsmanship and have acquired a true team spirit.

J.V. Basketball

The J.V. Basketball team has had an outstanding season due to hard work and diligent practice. Under the direction of coach Yianankes the team brought home a win time after time. The boys showed that they possess the skill and ability to make a first rate varsity ball club in future years.

Basketball

Leading the Hornets' "67", now nicknamed the Vo-5, is sports-star Dean Salter. At 6'6" Dean is usually the biggest man on court and shows great work both defensively and offensively. Rounding out the starting line-up are, Joe Lawler, who at 6'5" is the top scorer on the squad. Doug Smith, who wears the familiar #33 from last year and lives up to its great reputation. Bill Swadel, and Ed Putis, although the two smallest players, by far provide the most excitement with their skillful ballhandling.

Backing up the varsity is the strongest bench in years with Jim Pebbler 6', Jack Miller, the team's "Jumping Jack", and Jim Twomey, 5'8". The team's managers are Rich McNeil, Charlie Rogan and Mike Fitzmaurice.

Maurice Stokes Committee

Maurice Stokes was a basketball player with a great deal of skill and potential when an unfortunate accident caused him to become disabled. Now his medical expenses are constantly pyramiding until he can no longer handle them without outside help.

The purpose of the Maurice Stokes Committee is to organize the raising of funds by the school for Maurice Stokes. They plan and organize functions, such as car washes, and sock hops for both the entertainment of all involved and to finance some of Maurice Stokes' bills.

The team practices at local golf courses and then participates weekly in matches with surrounding towns, in which they often place very well. Team members practice not only during designated hours but also on weekends and during their free time.

Senior Play

This year's senior play, The Bachelor's Baby, was held on January 20 and 21. Directed by Mr. Roy and Miss Fowler the play was termed a success by all. The play was a riotous affair dealing with the misadventures of Oliver Custer (Bob Woollacott). A South American Diplomat (John Cullen), a calculating magazine editor (Nancie Holden), and a misunderstood Southern Belle (Linda Johnson) added to the merriment.

Junior Prom

In May of 1966 the class of '67 held its Junior Prom, "Evening in Paris". The cafeteria had been transformed, with the aid of flowers and posters, into a replica of that most romantic city in the world, Paris. The band played beneath the Eiffel Tower, couples sat in the sidewalk cafés, sipping 'champagne' and others danced beneath the deep blue, Paris sky.

The evening's highlight was heralded by the Grand March. After much deliberation the band made its decision—Prom Princess was Martha Taylor and her court was composed of Adair Ruane, Nancie Holden, Janice Canova, and Linda Johnson.

Class Prophecy

The other day, on a hot tip from Mr. Haney, I went over to M.I.T. where a friend of his showed me some very interesting discoveries he had made. One which immediately attracted my attention was a small bottle containing four fairly large tablets. Noting my curiosity he explained their use—he said if I took one tablet I would be able to see ten years into my future and that of my friends and if I took two tablets I would be able to see twenty years into the future. Then it came to me, if I were to write a prophecy of the Class of 1967, nothing would be better than to be allowed to see several years into the future. I asked for two tablets and immediately swallowed them—the first shock was strange, I felt myself being hurled through space. It was very much like the sensation one has when falling in a dream.

When I awakened I was on a crowded street of a strange city, but soon I began to recognize one of the buildings. I knew it was familiar looking and as I looked up I realized it was the old N.R. fire station. I felt sorry they hadn't built a new one by 1987, but it helped to make me feel at home. For over an hour I wandered around marvelling at how the town had grown and prospered. The first familiar face I saw was that of Al Sylvia (who I later learned was combining a career of college teaching with that of publishing the now daily Transcript.)

Al had kept pretty good track of the class and offered to re-acquaint me with the town and its inhabitants (Al, skeptical as always, didn't believe my story about Mr. Haney's friend and the pills). Our first trip was to the newly renovated city hall—Al introduced me to the Mayor, the old politician himself, Al Brown. Mayor Brown personally escorted us through the building and introduced his staff—Town Assessor Dave Peck (who incidentally, had recently collected $4 million in back grants from the government by carefully studying old laws); Secretaries Debby Johnston, Diane Milley, and Bernice Robinson; Board of Public Works—Wayne Brooks, George Thomas, Arthur Diaz, and Craig Wakefield; and School Committee—Linda Pretty, Steve Conrad, Bob Woollacott, Sue Walker, and Mr. Keyes (chairman).

We left Mayor Brown with the pressures of good government traveled on. As we walked through the streets Al told me about some of our classmates who had left town but kept in touch—John Cullen had recently been appointed director of the New York City Zoo, after successfully completing ten years of research on the extinction of the blue-green boa constrictor; George Reynolds, Paul Allen, and Dean Salter, all former Olympic stars, are now coaching at leading Eastern Colleges. There were indications, however, that Dean might soon resign and take up coaching duties for the seven-straight pennant winning Boston Red Sox. Al went on about how the Transcript had recently received a letter from Gary Lash, head of the President's Committee for the subsidization of the arts, telling about former N.R. students who were working under this program; Nancie Holden was directing the program for the dramatic arts, Gail LaCascia the dance program, Donn Hill the program for music, and Lee LaPerche the art program.

Our next visit took us to a newly erected shopping center which had been planned and built by Spear & Associates Inc. Shops included the "Penelope Butler Beauty Salon", "Pebler's Sporting Goods Store", "Gaudion's Book Store", and Nichols' Art Supplies". In the Professional Building we found "Kathy Carr—Fashion Co-ordinator", "Harriet Thayer, C.P.A.", and "Richard LeGrow, D.D.S."

Al continued about how, on the advice of one of our old teachers, Mr. Olivo, some of the class went to Hollywood to seek their fortunes—the girls, Chris Sweeney, Debbie O'Connor, and Lynn Macfarland did quite well, but the boys—Paul Green, Ken Ives, and Frank Reardon gave up in favor of other pursuits. He also explained that many members of the class had gone into teaching—M.P. O'Neil opened a progressive girls school where there were no definite rules or regulations; Karen Simes taught music there for fifteen years before she retired to travel around the world.

A hospital built in N.R. in 1970 had attracted many members of our class to its staff—Kathy Ryland, Paula Costa, Pat Tone, and Lynette Manning joined the nursing staff; Audrey Solimine became director of the biological research department; Linda Johnson, Sue Levine, Loretta Puglia, and Charlotte Allen are doing work in psychology; and Jim Murphy and Chris Jarvis are involved with the administrative policies of the hospital. And, of course, Lee Pomeroy is the Chief Resident.

As we were talking with Sally Blanchard, hidden within an immaculate white lab coat, who was conducting research in the hospital biology department, a phone call came for Al. It seems that Foreign correspondent Barbara Letterie had just called in a story about the miraculous work being done by Marion Hussey, Janice Canova, and Donna Redding in their work with African natives through the Peace Corps.

Al had to leave to get the presses rolling for the afternoon paper and then rush over to Harvard to conduct an evening class in "The American Political Scene". Left to myself I decided to go over and see how good old N.R.H.S. had made out through the years.

You can imagine my surprise as I walked up Park Street when I saw a large neon sign advertising "Eisenhaure's Used Cars" where our football bleachers used to be. Car salesman Jim Wallace escorted me into the boss' office where I found our old classmate in a familiar position—doodling. He told me that a new school had been built on the outskirts of town on the advice of town architect and planner Cal Grant. Reluctantly, I left Jim's establishment and took a cab to the new high school.

My first stop was the principal's office where I was greeted by Nancy Hanson, head secretary. I was sorry to learn that Peter Burbine, the principal, was at a convention in Hawaii.

After receiving my visitors button I began my impromptu tour of the building. I passed the gym where Rita Mullin was busily conducting a class in basketball, and as I walked down the E-wing corridor I peeked in a room and who was there but Betty Stevens explaining the quadratic formula to a group of eager looking students. In the next room Sally Russell was in the midst of acting out an old Spanish Fable for her students.

The pills were beginning to wear off and finally I returned to reality. I immediately started off to C-5 to find Mr. Haney to relate my fantastic adventure.

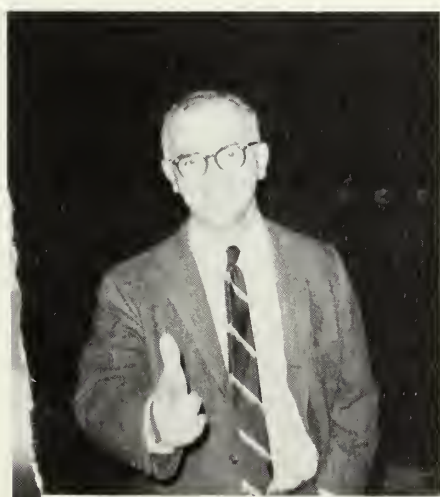

Big "O" for Spaghetti-O's

IN APPRECIATION

The class of '67 will never be able to fully express its appreciation to the many people who have helped throughout our years in N.R.H.S. Everyone was willing to give advice and spend their spare time working with us to make our projects successful. There are those, however, whose contributions we cannot overemphasize. With this in mind, we take this last opportunity to give one more thank-you to—Mr. Carey, for his support and guidance during our wild and crazy Junior year . . . Mr. Bradley for working with us in our most important year . . . Mr. Haney for taking over the 'dirty work' of the Yearbook, sticking with us through late nights and missed deadlines . . . Mr. Roy for staying with us through 'not-quite-there' rehearsals and directing our Senior play to the hit it was . . . Miss Dardeno, Mrs. Stacio, and Mr. Olivo for being there with a smile and an always ready helping hand . . . and all others who worked and cared.
